

There once was a young prince named Anzel. His father was the very successful King Dedrick of Huntington. He was the sole heir to his father's kingdom.

The prince sat in his castle playing video games. Any game he wanted, he could have.

But Prince Anzel was sad.
His dad was the best king dad a boy could ask for, but he had to travel to be so successful. All the video games got boring. He was lonely.

He made an online friend, Stanton. He lived far, far away, but he was very nice to Anzel.

His friendship seemed to be good for Anzel.

Call of Duty

It turned out that Stanton was actually very mean. It made the poor prince very sad.

One day, Prince Anzel's father King Dedrick told Anzel that they were moving to his grandfather's kingdom, Norplaeca. It was very, very far away. He would go to his father's old school there.

In his grandfather's kingdom, Prince Anzel got to know his grandparents. This made the young prince feel a lot less lonely.

The young prince began working in his grandparent's garden a lot. He learned he really loved camellias and working camellia shows.

At his new school, Prince Anzel
made many friends.

Although the most handsome of his friends, Prince Anzel was the only one without a girlfriend. This made him lonely.

He had a crush on the very smart Maribelle, but the timing was never right. But they were good friends.

Come time for the school ball, Maribelle had a date. So he went with the evil Jezebel from another school. They went to her ball first.
He thought he could change her.

But three days before his school's ball, the evil Jezebel was nowhere to be found. She skipped their date and stopped answering the prince.

"Hey Anzel! I have an idea!" His friend said.

"I know a knew girl who just traveled here from a super far away kingdom! I could talk to her for you!"

"Sure! Thank you so much!" Anzel replied excitedly.

Alice, the new girl traveller, decided to go to the ball with Anzel. Only as a friend, though, not a girlfriend. They had a great time. Prince Anzel fell in love.

Alice and the prince texted
every single day, and she soon fell in love too.

One night, Alice kissed Prince Anzel,
and they started dating. Prince Anzel was very happy.

Prince Anzel successfully graduated from high school and went to college.

At his new college, the prince joined a fraternity and made many friends. Between his girlfriend and his friends, Prince Anzel didn't feel so alone anymore.

That's the story of how the young,
lonely prince of Huntington became the popular, successful prince he is today.
Even though he had some rough spots early on, trusting the evil Stanton and thinking he could change the even more wicked Jezebel, he eventually fell in love and made many good friends.

And they all
lived happily ever after.

That is, everyone but the evil Jezebel lived happily ever after. She got caught committing evil crimes and was thrown into jail.

The End
